

Integrated MedCraft Acquires TrueClot and Dislotech Product Lines from Luna Labs

East Hampton, CT, November 3, 2025 – Integrated MedCraft LLC, a leading provider of pre-hospital medical devices and therapies, is excited to announce the acquisition of the TrueClot® and Dislotech™ product lines from Luna Labs USA. This strategic acquisition will enhance Integrated MedCraft's ability to support its Military, Law Enforcement and Emergency Medical Services customers with high fidelity task trainers and tools for their training efforts.

The patented line of TrueClot bleeding control training products provides unprecedented and cost-effective realism for all levels of training. This includes everything from beginner bleeding control courses to advanced Tactical Emergency Casualty Care and Tactical Combat Casualty Care (TECC and TCCC) training for professional First Responders, Law Enforcement, Combat Medics, and Corpsmen.

Dislotech Joint Reduction Trainers offer athletic trainers and medical professionals a medical simulation tool that replicates actual joint reduction procedures, enabling hands-on skills development prior to practice on patients.

"This acquisition aligns with our commitment to providing innovative and reliable medical device and training solutions to the Patriots we serve," said Rick Barber, COO of Integrated MedCraft. "These product lines will significantly expand our ability to support our customers' training needs as they prepare to provide exceptional patient care."

"Divesting MedSim is a great example of our disciplined approach to value creation. We develop high-impact technologies, mature them through customer adoption, and transition them to strategic partners for further growth," said James Garrett, CEO of Luna Labs. "We are confident that Integrated MedCraft shares our vision and will accelerate advancement of simulation training for first responders and medical professionals."

Integrated MedCraft will integrate the TrueClot and Dislotech product lines with their full portfolio of first responder products. The new product additions will be available from Integrated Medcraft for military and first responders worldwide.

To learn more about the TrueClot and Dislotech product lines, please visit: www.trueclot.com, www.dislotech.com or www.integratedmc.com.

For additional information, please contact:

Integrated MedCraft LLC
Ph: (855)752-1011
press@integratedmc.com

About Integrated MedCraft

Integrated Medcraft is a medical device company that specializes in tactical and emergency care solutions for military and civilian medical providers. Co-founded by Jenn and Rick Barber, the company delivers innovative tactical and emergency medical products and training solutions from both industry leading medical device manufacturers as well as through our Forward and APLS brands.

About Luna Labs

Luna Labs USA LLC is a product development company working with leading organizations and key government agencies to create unique solutions for complex challenges in defense, industrial, and healthcare markets.

###